

As the career management expert at American College of Healthcare Executives (ACHE), Rachel M. Gregoire serves as a key player in managing career related programs, products and services.

Rachel has been with ACHE for the past three years, and during this time she has contributed to multiple record breaking years of supporting the career success of our members. Rachel manages tools and programs such as ACHE's CareerEDGE and the Leadership Mentoring Network. When Rachel is not at ACHE, she teaches career management courses at Robert Morris University and actively volunteers throughout the community with organizations such as Career Transitions Center of Chicago, DePaul University and Association Forum.
