
Dr. Lydia Chelala is an Assistant Professor of Diagnostic Radiology in the Cardiopulmonary Imaging division at the University of Chicago. She completed her radiology residency and cardiothoracic fellowship training at the University of Maryland Medical Center. She has a strong interest in interstitial lung disease, interstitial lung abnormality and lung cancer screening. Additional areas of interest include resident education and cardiovascular imaging.